May Has Heart Attack, Fails To Appear at Munitions Probe

CONGRESSMAN CAN'T TESTIFY, SAYS DOCTOR

Mead Reveals Records Show Murray Garsson Once Friend of Capone.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. May (D., Ky.) failed to show up today to testify on his wartime intervention on behalf of a munitions combine, and his attorney said the 71-year-old legislator is ill and would be unable to appear for at least a week.

Chairman Mead (D., N. Y.) of the senate was investigating committee went through the formal motions of inquiry whether the Kentucky legislator was "in the room" ready to take the stand.

He did this even though he was informed 14 hours earlier that May had suffered a heart attack on the eve of his scheduled appearance.

Files Records. The committee placed in its record files from the labor department pertaining to Murray Garsson, one of the promoters of the munitions combine to which May's name had been linked by previous testimony.

Garsson was formerly an investigator for the department, and committee records showed that he was removed by Secretary Perkins.

Mead said they showed that Garsson had once been "on very friendly terms with Al Capone and visited him alone in the jail out there (Chicago)."

The records also showed Mead said, that in certain "Los Angeles cases" concerning Garsson there were a "great many actors and actresses and stars" involved.

Raps Officials. The existence of the file showed, Mead contended, a "lack of interest" on the part of "certain government representatives, in determining the character, reputation and morals" of contractors with whom the government did business.

Counsel for May told the committee that May's physician is willing to explain in private session why the congressman is unable to testify now.

The committee called to the witness stand Charles A. Irvine, chief of the audit division of the general accounting office. He testified that the office had taken exception to payments of disbursing officers for the travel expenses of war department officials who attended the wedding of Garsson's daughter in New York on Jan. 2, 1944.

This meant, Irvine said, that in the absence of a specific showing of military duty performed, the disbursing or certifying officer would be required to make good the amount paid or else collect it from the individual who received it.

BACKS SAFETY

Coal Administrator Orders Use of New Code.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Coal Mines Administrator Ben Moreell today ordered the first industry-wide safety code in the history of the nation's bituminous mines into effect next Monday in the government-sized pits.

The interior department announcement on the code described it as "a milestone on the road that leads to making American mines the safest in the world."

Jap Train Wreck Takes 170 Lives

TOKYO — (AP) — More than 170 persons were killed or injured today when a speeding freight train plowed into a stalled express near Tokyo.

Must Use Fingers And Toes

HOOD RIVER, Ore. — (AP) — The pickiest migrant worker in the west—maybe in the world—drew his paycheck today and headed for California and another harvest.

Henry Wooten, one-time Kentuckian, heard the other day that nobody ever picked a ton of cherries in a day. So he picked a ton.

It took him 12 hours to strip 2,168 pounds of the trees in the Webster orchards. It gave him the record, also $75.84. "He's about the best man we've ever had," said Roy Webster with magnificent understatement.

In six consecutive days last week he earned an average of $56 a day at 3 1/2 cents a pound.

100,000 NICE, SHINY '46 CARS SOLD OVERSEAS

Motor Makers Defend Action as Necessary to Hold Foreign Markets.

NEW YORK — (AP) — More than 100,000 new 1946 American cars and trucks have been exported at a time when new vehicles at home have been almost as scarce as swimmers at Bikini.

In the last six months of this year, which from a production standpoint has been the most barren peacetime year since the auto industry began to wear long pants, 37,440 shiny new cars and 67,381 trucks of all makes have been sent to foreign users.

Takes Big Slice. Total production in that time, when output was sharply limited by strikes and materials shortages, was 978,108 units.

Industry spokesmen revealed these figures today but insisted that the export trade has nothing to do with better prices abroad.

They said that auto makers, because of intra-mural and foreign competition, must export the same percentage of cars they did before the war to hold on to their markets overseas. The chief rival abroad is England and the main arena of the rivalry seems to be Latin America, with Europe next.

Export division spokesmen for the "Big Three"—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler—denied that the new cars have been and are being shipped out because of higher prices abroad. They point out that before any units left this country, the OPA set an export price ceiling on them.

Also, it is pointed out, the maximum volume of export to any given foreign country still is controlled by the American state department.

IT'S CHILLY

Mansfielders Had Reason For Putting on Another Blanket.

If you got up in the middle of the night for another blanket, you had a good reason. The usual July weather had somewhere as the temperature dropped to a chilly low of 49 degrees last night.

And the weatherman, reporting, the mercury had climbed back only to the 71 degrees by noon today, said abnormally low temperatures were due to hang on into tomorrow. Somewhat higher temperatures and a little cloudiness are due for Sunday, he said.

The freakishly cold weather was general throughout Ohio, Cleveland recording a minimum temperature of 46, the lowest there on a July morning since July 3, 1907. East Liverpool had the lowest temperature at 45 degrees. Mansfield's highest yesterday was 68.

BOY CONFESSES POISON MURDER

Admission Clears Up Death of Youth Found in Water of Old Quarry.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Warren Rose, 17, of Columbus has admitted poisoning 16-year-old Daniel Enslow, the bureau of juvenile research, whose body was found last Saturday in a water-filled quarry. Assistant Prosecutor T. Vincent Martin announced today.

The poison, Martin said, was administered on a piece of candy.

Rose, last of four boys who escaped last Saturday afternoon from the bureau yard to be apprehended was arrested by Athens early today on information furnished by the Franklin county sheriff's office, Earl Heise, chief of the criminal division of the Columbus police department, said.

Donald R. Howard, 15, Wheelersburg, came in voluntarily soon after the escape. Edward "Mick" Balog, 16, was captured near his home in Dayton a few days later.

Young Rose, who was born in Columbus Jan. 21, 1931, was sent to the bureau of juvenile research by the Franklin county juvenile center after a complaint of auto theft had been filed against him and another youth, the center said.

The complaint was filed in April and climaxed a career of delinquency which began four years before when Warren was only 11. He was under observation by bureau psychologists at the time of his escape.

The situation is without parallel at the bureau, which was founded in 1914, bureau officials declared.

Army Plans Recall Of 1000 Officers

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The war department announced plans today for recalling to active duty more than one thousand national guard and reserve officers because of acute personnel shortages.

The department said that it prefers to fill vacancies with volunteers but made it clear that the army is authorized to recall officers to active duty without their consent during an emergency.

FIRE COSTS MILLION

OAKLAND, Calif. — (AP) — Firemen battled stubborn remnants of a seven-alarm blaze today which spread through a downtown hardware store and three-story frame hotel, injuring a score of firemen and imperiling 30 hotel residents. Damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

County Wheat, Oats Crops Are 'The Tops'

Grain Reported Clean and Yield Heavy, Combines Can't Keep Up With Harvest Job.

Reports of a bountiful small grain harvest in Richland county today tallied with those from the state and nation.

Wheat was reported as coming in at the Lantz Milling company in cleaner condition than in years. The quality was described as good, and from talk heard around the mill the indication is that county farmers are harvesting yields that average from 25 to 50 bushels to the acre.

Robert Kussell, manager of the Matthes farm east of Mansfield reported 13 acres of wheat that averaged almost 42 1/2 bushels to the acre.

The oats crop was also reported good both in yield and quality.

A News-Journal survey of the county revealed today that a considerable amount of wheat is being left standing while farmers and combine operators rush to complete the oats harvest before the straw starts breaking.

The weather also was blamed for a retarded harvest in some areas. Both rains and heavy nightly dews were reported keeping combines out of the fields until late in the day when the straw dries sufficiently to permit the machinery to handle it.

Some farmers fearful that combine operators will not be able to get to them in time are reported to be falling back onto the use of a binder to cut their wheat before the loss from shattering becomes too heavy.

GAMBLING RAID NETS BIG CATCH

55 Devices of Chance Picked Up By Officers in Holmes County.

MILLERSBURG — Sheriff Wayne D. Stamer, of Holmes county, sent Deputy Wayne Turner and Prosecutor Raymond Miller out hunting Thursday and they returned with a full bag.

The day's catch: Six pin ball machines, Forty-three punchboards, Six fishbowls.

The pin ball machines were picked up in Millersburg, Berlin, and in an establishment south of Millersburg, and the punchboards and fishbowls were the result of a county-wide sweep, Turner and Miller reported.

Prosecutor Miller said that the pin ball machines had made their appearance in Millersburg in the last three or four weeks.

STATE CONTROLS END

NEW YORK — (AP) — The brief careers of the states of New York and New Jersey as guardians of rent ceilings came to a close today with the rebirth of OPA.

BOY INJURED AS ROPE SNAGS ON AUTO BUMPER

Jerked to the pavement when a rope he was twirling caught on the rear bumper of a moving car, 12-year-old Robert Grubbaugh, of 23 South Willis avenue, was in General hospital today with a fractured shoulder and head lacerations.

Mansfield police reported that the Grubbaugh youth's rope caught on a car driven by R. G. Zimmerman, Wooster, R. D. 5, yesterday about 3 p. m. on Distl avenue.

Meanwhile, state highway patrolmen reported that Miss Kathleen Biglin, 21, of Shelby, R. D. 2, suffered a broken right leg and hand yesterday in a two-car collision near Shelby. She was admitted to Shelby Memorial hospital.

Miss Biglin was injured when a car in which she was riding, driven by Miss Maryann Thompson, 21, of Shelby, R. D. 2, collided with one driven by Ellis H. Moore, 22, of Shelby, yesterday about 5:30 p. m.

Highway patrolmen said that Miss Thompson disregarded a stop sign on Weaver road at the intersection of State Route 544. She was ordered to appear before Mayor Long, of Shelby, Saturday on charges of failing to obtain a driver's license, patrolmen said.

COUNSEL ASKS SANITY TEST FOR HEIRENS

Youth Accused of 2 Murders. Other Crimes. Thought to Have Dual Personality.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO — (AP) — Indictments were returned today charging William Heirens with murder in the kidnap-slaying of Suzanne Degnan and the "lipstick killing" of Frances Brown.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Counsel for William George Heirens will ask for a continuance of their client's arraignment on murder charges to permit his examination by a psychiatrist.

The Cook county grand jury today was expected to return true bills charging the 17-year-old University of Chicago student with two of the most brutal and wanton murders in Chicago history.

Heirens is accused of kidnaping six-year-old Suzanne Degnan, strangling her, dismembering her, and hiding the parts of her body in sewer catchbasins.

The youth is also accused of the "lipstick" slaying of ex-WAVE Frances Brown. The state charges he stabbed and shot her when she caught him prowling her hotel apartment.

State alienists have already examined the youngster, and in unofficial reports have stated he is legally sane, although possessed of a dual personality.

Plan Defense. Attorneys for Heirens were scheduled to confer with him and his parents today, following the convening of the grand jury to make its report, and it was reported defense strategy will be finally formulated at that conference.

If true bills are returned for both murders, it will bring to 31 the number of crimes with which the youth is charged. He already is under indictment on 29 charges of burglary and assault with intent to kill.

Scientific testimony was given before the grand jury that both a ransom note for $20,000 in the Degnan case and a message printed in lipstick on the wall of Miss Brown's apartment were in Heirens' handwriting.

Six-year-old Suzanne was kidnaped from her home Jan. 7, strangled and her body dismembered.

GUARDSMEN OFF TO CAMP PERRY

60 Members of Company M to Leave City at Seven Saturday Morning.

The entire personnel of Mansfield's Company M is expected to shove off at 7 a. m. tomorrow for a week's camping session at Camp Perry, Lt. Walter E. Rusk said today that 60 Ohio State Guard members are expected to take part.

Activities will be divided between rifle range practice and brigade movements. The first three days of the camp will be devoted to range shooting, and Thursday and Friday to the deployment and tactics of larger units. The company is expected to arrive back in the city Aug. 4.

Rusk said that four trucks from Akron will arrive tonight to assist in the practice march Saturday to the camp. Two local trucks and two scout cars from the local unit will be included in the march. Capt. Charles A. Condon, commander of the company, and Lt. Rusk will serve as officers of the camp.

Camp Perry, which boasts the finest rifle range in the world is the property of the state, having been purchased through popular subscription.

Jewels Taken From Air Victim's Body

CONWAY, N. H. — (AP) — A police investigation was in progress today to locate valuable rings and gems believed stripped from the body of Mrs. L. L. Leveque, wealthy Columbus, O., society matron, who with her husband and pilot died in a plane crash last spring atop Parker mountain.

The victim was known to be wearing at least two valuable rings, one of them an eight-carat diamond. This and other jewels were not returned with the body when it was sent to Columbus for burial.

Price Agency 'Back In the Saddle Again'

OPA Swings Into Action, Preparing to Make Up Lost Time.

Revival at a Glance.

Truman's signature restores price controls after 25-day lapse. Old ceilings in effect, but agency ready with 142 new orders.

President warns special session may have to consider tax hike.

NAM raps revival measure; UAW calls for continued buyers' strike.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Price and rent controls are back in effect and OPA is out today to make up lost time.

Stripped of many of its powers under the revival bill which President Truman "reluctantly" signed into law late yesterday, the agency nevertheless made ready to issue 142 pricing orders as it rolled back into business.

But none of these orders, due today, could touch any of these major items: meat, dairy products, eggs, poultry, grains, tobacco and petroleum. The new law exempts these commodities from price ceilings at least until after August 20.

Revival Brings Wave of Developments. Meanwhile, as the war-born agency came back to life after 25 days of legal death, there were these developments:

1. Mr. Truman, in a message in congress last night explaining why he had signed the revival measure "with reluctance," cautioned that it "by no means guarantees that inflation can be avoided." Hence, he added, if it does fail in that respect he will call a special session to strengthen it and possibly hike taxes.

2. Congressional leaders quickly said they saw no prospect whatever of boosting tax rates.

3. President Robert R. Wason of the National Association of Manufacturers said in a statement in New York "NAM still opposes OPA . . . because it restricts the freedom of the American people and substitutes the price judgments of a few super-bureaucrats for the judgments of forty million American housewives who have given us a four-week demonstration of their own ability to control prices."

Wason added that "manufacturing industry of course can be counted on to keep its prices as low as wages and other costs permit."

4. The CIO United Auto Workers announced in Detroit they will continue their OPA-holiday buyers' strike because, as UAW (Continued on Page 3)

Shaw at 90 Isn't Excited About It All

AYOT ST. LAWRENCE — (AP) — Authors, playwrights, actors and the reading public throughout the world thought of George Bernard Shaw on his 90th birthday today, but in his own home:

"No one mentioned his birthday. No one dars to in this house," a companion said.

Shaw simply refused to become excited over the event. He rose at 8:30, as usual, had his vegetarian breakfast and read through the newspapers.

Then, while this hamlet was just bursting with reporters of the world's press, Shaw set about his routine activities.

Quite suddenly his Rolls Royce appeared at his door and Shaw hurried out to it. He was dressed in a wide-brimmed gray hat and a flowing tunic, and carried a cane as reporters gathered about him he merely said:

"You're too late. It's all over now."

Then to his ancient chauffeur Shaw chuckled and added:

"That's an interview — that was."

And the car sped off in a rising cloud of dust, doing sixty.

It was understood that Shaw was off to London to meet the lord mayor of Dublin for the signing of papers in connection with his property in Ireland.

SCHETTLE TO DELAY CASES NOW PENDING

Seeks Clarification of New OPA Law as Tenants Learn 'June Rents' Prevail.

Judge H. H. Schettler today halted the hearing of eviction cases in his court until the new OPA law can be clarified.

The judge said he was postponing—probably until Tuesday—hearings on four cases which were up for action today.

Action on 11 other cases, which are to be heard soon, will also be held up until he has some official word from OPA as to the status of such cases under the new law, he said.

"It's a question of whether the new law can be considered retroactive so as to include cases which were filed during the period when there were no OPA regulations," the judge said.

Questions Ban. He said that he has read news reports out of Washington which say that eviction proceedings started during the OPA holiday and not filed in accordance with OPA regulations are now "banned."

"However, this cannot be a basis for judicial decision and I must wait for official word in the matter," the judge said.

He said that many of the 31 cases filed here in July did not comply with OPA regulations and hence they will be subject to review by him before a hearing can go forward.

Rents Drop. Meanwhile the congress-returned OPA bill shoved rents back to June ceilings in Mansfield and rent control officials prepared to oil the rusty control locks for another year.

George H. Blecker, area rent control director, said today that "rents will have to go back to what the tenants were paying on June 30."

Rents which were raised during the 25-day "no control" period must be "dropped back to their former levels at the beginning of the next rental period, he said. If the tenant paid in advance starting July 15, his rent will drop back on Aug. 15.

Blecker added that he will confer with Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler on evictions throughout the city soon.

Following the "death" of OPA at midnight June 30, some landlords took advantage of the lifting of a three-year control by raising the monthly rates on rental properties.

A report made by Blecker at the end of the first week without OPA, stated that rents in the city had advanced on an average of from 15 to 20 per cent. The director added that most of the increases had been imposed upon older rental properties and that "most of the rent hikes had been reasonable."

SHIFTS BURDEN

New Liquor Chief Demands Aid of Ohio Police.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — A new policy in liquor law enforcement is promised Ohio effective next week.

Harlan T. Chapman, newly-designated acting enforcement chief of the state liquor department, served notice local police would be expected to assume more responsibility and that the state, itself, might stage 130-agent raids "if necessary."

Chapman who also heads the department's permit division, was named acting enforcement chief yesterday to replace Frank W. Kleinfelder shortly after the 56-year-old Erie county Democrat resigned.

Their Objective's Not Pin Money

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Labor unions are pickers when it comes to asking for wage increases.

WESTBROOK PEGLER . . .

NEW YORK—Joe Fay and James Bove, the union gangsters whose convictions and prison sentences have been upheld unanimously by the New York court of appeals, are two of the lowest crooks in the entire rogues gallery of the American Federation of Labor, but let no poor, faceless chump of that drooling mass whom Henry Wallace so patronizingly calls the "common man" delude himself with a belief that this is a final clean-up. It does complete a round-up of one particular passel of rogues who robbed and slugged American workmen, including educated engineers from the big tech schools, and grafted from the government through crooked contractors, as rotten as themselves. But the parent rackets are still as foul as ever before and other thieves are still at large and in action.

Fay and Bove got from eight and one-half to fifteen years each in New York county, thanks to Frank Hogan, the district attorney, and a staff of lawyers and investigators working with the enthusiasm of a varsity team, but no thanks whatever to William Green, the president of the American Federation of Labor, its executive council or anyone else in the higher councils of the bund.

Bove, moreover, owes from ten to twenty years in prison for robbing his own local of the Hod-carriers' and Common Laborers' union in Westchester county, thanks, in this case, to Elbert T. Gallagher, during his term as district attorney of Westchester county. Bove already has manipulated at Sing Sing to start that course.

In addition, William J. McGee and James Parkinson, both of Yonkers, and Democratic politicians both, are under sentence of from three to six years for attempting to shake down contractors but have appealed. Their lawyer, asking clemency, said they were victims of Fay, and Vincent O'Connor, of Mr. Hogan's staff, who convicted them, again with no help from the A. F. of L., agreed that they were, at least, Fay's partners in crime. This, too, was a New York case and one of the fine technicalities advanced in the appeal argues that even if they were guilty they should have been tried in Westchester, not Manhattan.

Two other and lesser members of the Westchester mob, Felix Lozzi, 64 years old, and Anthony Petrillo, 69, pleaded guilty in the Westchester cases.

There are two big parent unions involved here, the International Union of Operating Engineers and the International Hod-carriers' Building and Common Laborers' Union of North America. Both have headquarters in Washington, both have been fronts for rackets, thuggery and war-time and strong political protection from the New BREMEN—(AP)—American airmen stationed at the Bremen airport are trying to find a picnic route to democracy for German boys and girls.

Ten of the airmen are giving up their Sundays and three evenings a week to work with the children. They say that Nazis are not born, but made, and that with proper guidance the German young could be fashioned into democrats.

Their program was begun in May. How it operates was shown here the other day, when three U. S. army trucks drove up to a Bremen school and took on a cargo of about 80 smiling, waving boys and girls, 10 to 15 years old.

Some of the children wore wooden-soled shoes, but, despite a soap scarcity, all were dressed in spotless clothes. Some were accompanied as far as the school by their mothers, who stood by silent and uncertain as the children climbed into the trucks.

The vehicles clattered through the bomb-devastated city, out into the country, and came to a halt in a picnic ground in a glade. There the children piled out, some to go romping through nearby woods, others to clamber back all over the trucks. Softballs and basketballs appeared.

Most of the children bore signs of malnutrition . . . circles under their eyes and thin arms and legs. Yet, for four hours, they played with terrific energy.

Whether it was the teachings of democracy or not, there were no attempts to monopolize the games. The ball invariably was tossed to any newcomer stepping into the circle. There were no arguments or squabbles, no occasion for reprimands, and never did any soldier say "don't" do this, or that.

"We don't believe in whistle blowing," a soldier said.

MANSFIELD VETS FORM POW CLUB

Former Prisoners Banding Together in Unusual Organization Here.

Mansfield vets who were captured during the war have banded together to form what is probably the only veterans' organization of its type in the country—a "Prisoners of War" club.

Its incorporation was announced yesterday with Fred J. Hallabrin, 100 Gibson avenue, as agent. Hallabrin, a former paratrooper, was in a German POW camp for 21 months.

The club's active members will all be ex-POWs but the group will admit anyone interested in fostering its activities as "social" members, Hallabrin said.

He said that he hopes the club will serve as a nucleus for the organization of other such groups throughout the state.

Main aim of this unusual group will be to help ex-prisoners back to health and to aid in getting back pay and earned decorations for them which became snarled in government "channels" while they were prisoners.

Acting trustees of the group are all former prisoners who served anywhere from one to three years in Jap or German prison camps, Hallabrin said.

They include Albert Allen, 21 Linden road, who was captured at the start of the Pacific war on Bataan and was a Jap prisoner for three years; Richard Shadel, a former Mansfielder, now living in Shelby; a German prisoner for 27 months; and Kenneth E. Yarnan, 758 1/2 West Fourth street, a German prisoner for about a year.

The group will meet in its temporary headquarters at 760 Springfield street next Thursday for an organization meeting when officers will be elected. All ex-POWs are invited to attend, Hallabrin said.

181 Taught to Swim by Red Cross; Adults Are Happiest

The Richland County Red Cross Water Safety Drive has gone over the top.

In a review of the progress to date by Sam Fox, water safety chairman, said that in addition to those given intermediate swimming instruction, 181 persons have been taught to swim at the two Mansfield pools and the Shelby pool.

At North Lake 51 passed the beginners swimming test, while 97 passed at Liberty Park, and 33 were qualified at the Shelby pool.

Although enthusiasm was shown by all participants those who were probably happiest with their new achievement were 10 adults out of a class of 24 who successfully completed the beginners test.

Most of these had never been in swimming before, Fox said.

A new intermediate swimmers' class of 33 members and a life saving class, with 34 students have been formed. Both classes are now in progress at Liberty Park pool where they were organized earlier this week.

Another beginners class has been filled and swimming instruction will start at 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. next Monday at North Lake park.

Provisions are also being made to handle both an intermediate swimmers' class and a life saving class at the Shelby pool with instruction to start next week, Fox announced.

Intermediate classes will be scheduled throughout the summer as the need arises, he said.

The life saving courses will run the required time of 15 hours and are directly supervised by Fred Bardsley, first aid director of the Richland County Red Cross Chapter.

Two Mansfielders, Fred Morey, 46 West Second street and Ruth Sheriff, 420 Sherman place, have also indicated their intention of attending the National Red Cross Aquatic school at Camp Minnehaha, Minnehaha Springs, W. Va., Aug. 22 to Sept. 1.

FOR VETERANS

Seven Types of Insurance Are Available, Says VA.

Although many veterans of World War I are not aware of it there are seven types of government life insurance available to those that are eligible, Walter V. Robinson, VA insurance chief, declared today.

All veterans of the first world conflict in this area were urged to get in touch with the Veterans Administration office in the Wal-park building to determine their individual eligibility.

The seven types available include a five-year term policy that can be renewed three times at the attained age, which may enjoy a period of 20 years, in addition to ordinary life, limited payment life and endowments.

Reports Ample Accommodations

Mansfield vacationists planning trips to Michigan this summer can set their minds at ease regarding overnight accommodations at hotels and tourist homes without advance reservations.

Jack Berger, secretary of the Richland County Auto club, said today that information received from the Michigan AAA revealed plenty of eating places and cabins for tourists. A flood of early reservations had led to unfounded reports of overcrowding of Michigan tourist facilities.

CARRIERS SEE SHOW—

Last night was carnival night for 100 Mansfield News-Journal carrier boys who were guests of the Blue Ribbon show, held all this week on the Blue Goose show-ground on Park avenue east. The carriers were given the two and one-half hours of fun free of charge. Last night was the second time the carrier boys were guests this summer. During the performance of the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey circus here in June, approximately 170 boys attended the big show as guests of The News-Journal.

IN HER LINE—

When queens from Mansfield and vicinity are flown to Wooster Sunday to meet the All Ohio Air Tour and accompany planes on the flight to Mansfield, none will be more enthusiastic than Jean Roth, high school senior and Shelby queen. Jean's life ambition is to become an airline hostess and she feels that she is really making contact with the aviation world. The queen and her attendants from Mansfield along with those from other nearby towns will be wearing corsages furnished by Carek, Inc., during the program.

A BIT CONFUSING—

How officials ever kept things straight in matters of real estate and road boundaries more than a century ago is hard to realize today. A record book of Richland county roads dated 1815 was being examined by employees of the county engineer's department this morning and some of the landmarks establishing the roads and where they were routed must have disappeared long ago. In one map drawn by James Hedges, one of the founders of Mansfield, a road makes a turn at "a windfall" where a picture of a fallen tree is drawn. Other landmarks in the old volume include such temporary things as a small swamp, a house, a boulder, and a stump. In one picture-map the road is shown passing through the window of a house—honest!

SAYS LEADERS CONSPIRED TO START ATTACK

U. S. Prosecutor States 22 Germans on Trial Share Blame With Hitler.

NUERNBERG, Germany—(AP)—Justice Robert H. Jackson demanded on behalf of the United States today that all the 22 Nazi leaders on trial on war crimes charges before the international tribunal be convicted as "conspirators" to wage aggressive war.

Opening the prosecution's summation for the Allied nations against Hermann Goering and his 21 co-defendants after eight months of testimony and debate, Jackson declared:

"Adolf Hitler's acts are their acts. His guilt is the guilt of the whole dock and every man in it."

Flays Goering

Goering, "half militarist and half gangster," was, "next to Hitler, the man who tied the activities of all the defendants together in a common effort," Jackson said, adding:

"The parts played by the other defendants, although less comprehensive and less spectacular than that of the reichsmarschal, were nevertheless integral and necessary contributions to the joint undertaking."

From the moment the Nazis came to power in 1933, Jackson asserted, "everyone of the defendants worked like hammers" to prepare for war which they knew would be a war of German aggression.

Dismissing with irony the "almost unanimous" defense of the group that "nobody knew anything about what was going on," the chief American prosecutor said "they all speak with a Nazi double talk."

"They have been given the kind of trial which they, in the days of their pomp and power, never gave to any man," he noted.

The supreme court justice limited his summation to the charge of conspiracy, thus leaving it to the French, British and Russian prosecutors to deal with these other counts of the indictment: crimes against peace, war crimes, and crimes against humanity.

Of the 24 Nazi leaders indicted last fall, Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy fuhrer, is missing and was tried in absentia. Robert Ley hanged himself in prison, and the trial of Gustav Krupp von Bohlen, the Ruhr industrialist, was postponed indefinitely because of his mental illness.

Jackson told the tribunal that "the pillars which uphold the conspiracy charge may be found in five groups of overt acts":

1. Seizure of power and subjugation of Germany to a police state in which "the party was the state, the state was the party, and terror by day and death by night were the policy of both."

2. Preparation for and actual waging of wars of aggression, for which the Nazis made "feverish but stealthy efforts, in defiance of the Versailles treaty" from the moment they came to power.

3. Warfare in disregard of international law, including the "starving, beating, murdering, freezing, and mass extermination admittedly used against the eastern soldier" and the shooting of British and American airmen.

4. Enslavement and plunder of populations in occupied countries.

5. Persecution and extermination of Jews and Christians, which resulted in the killing of an estimated 6,000,000 Jews "in the most far-flung and terrible racial persecution of all time."

"The central crime in this pattern of crime, the kingly which holds them all together, is the plot for aggressive war," Jackson stated.

Bums Beat Cubs; Cards Split Two

By JOE REICHLER, AP Sports Writer.
For the first time in the memory of the modern day baseball fan, followers of the Brooklyn Dodgers today actually were singing the praises of the New York Giants.
For if it hadn't been for those same Giants, the Dodgers might not be perched at the top of the National league today.
True, the Dodgers whipped the Chicago Cubs 4-1 for the second straight time yesterday, but had the St. Louis Cardinals swept the three-game series with the Giants, including yesterday's twin-bill, the Redbirds and not the Brooks would be occupying first place.
Instead, the Giants by dividing the two games, gained the series two games to one to enable the Brooks to build up a game and a half lead over Eddie Dyer's pestiferous challengers.
After handsome Howie Pollet, the willowy lefthander from New Orleans, had gained his 12th mound victory for the Cards with a nine-hit 2-1 triumph, the Giants threw their southpaw freshman ace, Monte Kennedy, against the Birds, and the 21-year-old North Carolinian clipped the Cardinals' wings with three hits as the Giants won 6-1.
In losing, the Cubs saw their third place lead over Cincinnati narrow to three and a half games as the Reds eked out a 1-0 decision over the Boston Braves.
The clearing of the entire Pittsburgh Pirates' bench except for the regular lineup by Umpire George Magerkurth highlighted the twin bill between the Bucs and Philadelphia Phillies. Magerkurth's action came after the Pirates booted a third called strike on Chuck Workman.
The Pirates, behind the seventh-hit pitching of Johnny Lanning, won the opener 2-1, but the Phils came back to rip Truett Sewell apart 9-2 in the nightcap.
In the American league, Boston's pace-setting Red Sox dropped a 3-1 verdict to the Chicago White Sox which cut their lead over the idle New York Yankees to 11 games.
With Mickey Vernon having a perfect four for four at the plate to wrest the league's individual batting leadership from Williams by one point, the Washington Senators tanned Detroit's Tigers 8-3 in the rubber game of their three-game set.
The Yankees and St. Louis Browns had an off day.

Local Golfers Ousted From Ohio Amateur

LEMA — Mansfield's Al Hager and Carl Wiseman were eliminated from further play in the Ohio amateur golf tournament here yesterday as the original field of 64 was reduced to the quarter final stage of eight.
Hager went the furthest of the two gaining the third round of 16 before losing to Carlin Short of Akron, 1 up, yesterday afternoon.
In the morning's second round, Hager easily defeated Cramer Mahan, Dayton, 7 and 6.
Wiseman lost to Cleveland's Eddie Meister in the morning round, 2 up.

Clevelanders were out in front and running strong today and two of them—Ed Preisler and Meister—drew top billing in today's forenoon round.

Preisler yesterday stopped Maurice McCarthy, Cincinnati, a three-time state champion, to gain the right to meet the 29-year-old Meister.

Other matches to be played this morning are Andrew Kocan, Cleveland, vs. Short; Tony Ruddy, Toledo, vs. Dick Tang, Dayton; and Harold Gey, Urbana, vs. Angelo Biagetti, Sandusky.

Soap Box Derby to Be Staged On Smooth S. Main Road Hill

To give youthful pilotdesigners every possible "break," site of the 1946 News-Journal Soap Box Derby has been changed to South Main street road, one mile from the square, just beyond Chilton avenue.
The Derby, jointly sponsored by the News-Journal, Brandenburg Chevrolet and YMCA, is set to be run off next Wednesday at 2 p. m. Approximately 60 cars will compete.
Original track was on Route 42, east of Mansfield, but roughness of the racing strip caused the change.

State Highway Department will start detouring traffic at noon Wednesday so that Derby Hill can be readied for the races. Southbound traffic will be rerouted at Prospect street to Lexington avenue while northbound will be cut off at Cook road and routed to Lexington avenue.

A safety fence will be erected to protect spectators and a Red Cross first-aid tent will be set up.
Chief officials for the Mansfield Derby are: Don Cram, derby director; W. A. Brandenburg, honorary chairman; George Donges, Ashland college athletic director, head judge; John Catlett, starter; Jim Lympier, director of heats; Dr. Robert P. Scott, physician; Harry Mechock and Robert Rogers, timers; Harvey Bailey, registrar; Ralph Wolfe, chief inspector; Hal Clawson, clerk of course, and Lawrence A. McIntyre, weighmaster.

Loans Gain State Softball Tourney

MARION—Behind the excellent hurling of Marty Shaffer and plenty of fine support afield, the Provident Loan softball team of Mansfield defeated the Smitty's Grills nine, 3-1, here last night for the girls' district title.
Mansfield will compete in the state girls' tournament at Columbus starting August 16.
Last night's game was one of the best tilts ever to be witnessed in a district tourney. It was a ball game in which the breaks decided the outcome.

Both teams went hitless until the third when Arlene Derrenberger and Mary Bessemer poked out singles. A double play killed the rally.

Betty Mochel, Marion pitcher, got two of the three hits off Shaffer. She got the first one in the third. The Grills had the bases full in this inning but the Loans pulled out without giving up a run.
Mansfield ran into trouble in the fourth when two Grill players got on base but again no runs were allowed.
Simms scored the Grills' lone tally in the fourth when Mochel again singled.
Betty Faust put Mansfield back in the ball game with a home run to right field in the sixth frame.
In the first of the eighth, Bessemer and Jean Herrick got on base and tallied on Margaret Tippul's hit.

Pitcher Joe Berry and First Baseman Heinz Becker, who used to play with Veck's American Association club, teamed up yesterday to produce a ninth-inning run that enabled the Tribe to edge the Philadelphia Athletics 9 to 8 and sweep the series.
The victory was one of the Indians' most impressive comebacks and brought them within three games of the 500 mark.

Hank Edwards had given Cleveland an 8 to 7 advantage in the seventh when he poled a home run, his second in as many days, but the A's came back to knot the count in the ninth.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

ONE OF PETER'S BUSINESS is to tell me people want to know too much. I tore and close your ears to such.

—Old Mother Nature.

Soft dusk lay like a veil over the Old Pasture and the Green Meadows. Beyond in the Green rest the Black Shadows had already gathered. It was the hour of rest and peace between the ending day and beginning night, the hour of tranquil dreaming, happy idleness, of forgetfulness and care, of sheer joy in being alive.

Peter Rabbit and Mrs. Peter sat outside the dear Old Briar-arch. From deep in the Green rest came the loveliest of all singing songs, softened and made more lovelier by distance, the voice of Hermit Thrush. At the edge of the swamp Hermit's isin, Veery the Tawny Thrush, is tingling his silver bell, and in the Old Orchard another isin, Melody the Wood Thrush, is putting all his quiet joy in being in song.

Presently another voice joined in. It was a simple little song of very notes each one of which was of pure happiness. Sweet voice the Vesper Sparrow was singing from a fence post on the edge of the Old Pasture only a little way from the Old Briar-arch.

"I wonder," said Peter, "if Sweetvoice is singing to Mrs. Sweetvoice or just for the love of singing."

"Perhaps both," said Mrs. Peter, "wonder how it would seem to be to like that," she added a wistfully.

Peter took no notice of this. When Mrs. Sweetvoice had him to wondering where she was. "Speaking of Mrs. Sweetvoice I haven't seen her for several days. I wonder where she is," said he.

"Probably busy with family duties. Most mother birds are just as," replied Mrs. Peter.

"That means she has a nest. I wonder where," said Peter more himself than to Mrs. Peter.

"She probably would tell you that it is none of your business. I she would be quite right," said Mrs. Peter.

Peter paid no heed. "Now I think of it I never have seen the nest of Sweetvoice and Mrs. Sweetvoice," he continued. "I n't even know whether it is on Green Meadows or in the Old Pasture."

"And I still say it is none of your business," remarked Mrs. Peter.

"It is funny that I have never thought about it before," Peter on as if Mrs. Peter hadn't spoken. "Probably it is over in

"He might drop a hint," said Peter.

The Old Pasture. There are no trees or bushes in which to build a nest on the Green Meadows. Sweetvoice spends a lot of time on that fence post singing, so I guess Mrs. Sweetvoice isn't far away. I wonder what kind of a nest they have and if they have eggs now or babies. I believe I will run over and talk to Sweetvoice."

"You stay right here where you are, Peter Rabbit," said Mrs. Peter severely. "You know just as well as I do that where that nest is, or what it is like, is no business of yours, and Sweetvoice will tell you so."

"He might drop a hint," said Peter.

Mrs. Peter stamped. It is her way of expressing her feelings. It is the way of all Rabbits. "Don't meddle," said she. "No good comes of meddling in the affairs of other people. What good would it do you to find out where that nest is?"

"Well," began Peter and paused. "Well what?" demanded Mrs. Peter.

"I would just like to know, that's all," replied Peter lamely. "I wouldn't do any harm."

"You might. You wouldn't mean to, but just the same you might. That is why I made the nest for our babies where you wouldn't be likely to find it and show it to others."

"I wouldn't do such a thing, and you know it," declared Peter indignantly.

"You might, not meaning to, of course. If you don't know where the nest of those Sparrows is they never can blame you for any harm that may come to it. Keep out of things that are none of your business and you will keep out of a lot of trouble," replied Mrs. Peter tartly.

The next story: "Clever Mrs. Sweetvoice."

Mohammedans first used coffee to keep awake during long religious ceremonies.

Barclay On Bridge

Leading an honor when you intend to finesse instead of a small card toward a contiguous honor, involves usually an extra risk for which there is no compensating gain. If the opponent playing on that honor is able to cover it, he thereby forces you to use the topping card to take the trick. You have therefore consumed two cards of useful height to get the trick. Hence, unless you have some special situation to consider, such as shortage of entries, it is generally better to lead low and stick in a secondary honor from the opposite hand for your first finesse.

After the K and A took the first two diamond leads, South got the third with his Q. Counting up, he decided that eight tricks were surely in sight and the ninth would come if the spade finesse worked. It worked all right, but didn't give him his ninth trick, because he played the finesse incorrectly.

To the fourth trick South led the spade Q. West promptly covered it with his K to force the A. The J and 10 then were good, but East had the 8 left to beat the 4. The best South could do then was add four tricks to the four he already had, taking two in clubs and two in hearts. But he then had to lose the lead, whereupon West set him with two more diamond tricks.

If South had led the spade 3 to the first trick in that suit and finessed the 10, returned to his own hand with a heart entry, then led the 7 prepared to finesse again, the K would have been caught without expending the Q. That would have given him four tricks in the suit, and his game.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ENCASE BULB IN SAND

Plant Madonna Lily Bulbs Now

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Madonna Lilies should be planted now, or just as soon as you can obtain the bulbs. Early planting is important because it gives the bulb time to make a strong root system of leaf growth before winter sets in.

The Madonna lily is the most beloved of the white lilies. It is frequently planted among delphinium and serves as a perfect foil for their beauty. The flower spikes are three to four feet high. Each spike carries a cluster of pure white waxy bells having bright protruding anthers.

This lily differs in its likes and dislikes from most other lilies. While it is easy to grow its habits should be understood. It thrives in almost any soil or location, even a heavy clay soil if it is well drained.

The Madonna lily should be planted in a handful of sharp sand, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The West 4-Hearts, what action should North take?

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

When old man Scott's lawyer learned that his client had inherited two million dollars and a five percent interest in "Oklahoma!" he told his secretary, "I'll have to break it to him gently or the old coot will drop dead from the shock. Watch how I do it."

They wheeled in the aged Mr. Scott promptly at three. "What's up?" he demanded crossly.

"Mr. Scott," began the lawyer softly. "What would you say if I told you you had inherited a couple of million dollars?"

Scott cackled. "Say? Why Horace?"

Horace, you danged fool, I'd say 'Half of it goes to you.'"

The lawyer dropped dead.

It Was Out of Their Line, But They Helped Find the Nephew

By JOHN MINE

City detectives, usually engaged in digging out hard-to-pin-down facts about crimes, got an unusual "law-abiding" assignment yesterday and came up with the answer in three hours.

When they had finished their work, "communications" had been re-established between a "missing" vet who now lives in Mansfield and his aunt and ailing grandmother in El Paso, Texas.

The relatives were sincerely worried about him and wondering of his whereabouts. Last they'd heard he was in England preparing to return to the United States. This was in November of last year.

A letter from the man's aunt, Mrs. R. G. McNeely, asking for the department's help in locating her nephew, George C. May, said that she realized that "this request is out of your line, but . . ."

So Detectives F. Bruce Friday and Howard Shuck went "out of their line" to find the man. They located May and his wife lived at 61 1/2 East Third, that May worked at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, that he had undergone an operation recently and was currently recuperating at home.

This information was sent to the aunt in a formal report by the detectives who added that May "will communicate with you in the near future."

With their "peaceful" assignment accomplished, Detectives Friday and Shuck returned to their normal hunt for crime.

SPECTATOR SAVES SHOW

LONDON —(CP)—The show must go on—and so it did at Collins Music hall, but with a brand new twist. When the star of the evening dress opera performance reported ill, it was discovered that no understudy was available. But a member of the audience, Linda Lavell, a professional singer, said she knew the part. She left the spectators, joined the performers—and as ordained by tradition, the show went on.

OHIO NEAR TOP IN INDUSTRIAL RANKS OF U. S.

State Leads in Twelve Major Lines, Stands High in Eight Others.

COLUMBUS, (C.P.)—The state of Ohio leads the nation in a dozen major industries and stands with the top 10 states in eight more.

One of every four Ohioans is associated in some way with the state's 9,000 industrial plants, which directly employ well over a million men and women.

These facts—and many others—were revealed in the industrial issue of the Ohio Development News, published this week by the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission.

Most Buckeyes realize that their state was tops in the production of tires and tubes and unchallenged in the manufacturing of bricks and pottery. But, as the news points out, not so many know Ohio's supremacy in such diversified fields as printing and publishing soap manufacture, and even sports goods.

Here is the complete list of Buckeye firsts: Tires and tubes, machine tools, iron and steel products, stoves, furnaces, ranges, electrical appliances, printing, motor vehicle parts and bodies, blast furnace products, generators, distributors and industrial equipment.

And Ohio stands among the top ten states in meat packing, baked goods, paper, chemicals, paints, varnishes, men's clothing and footwear.

The world's largest soap factory is in Cincinnati and that city also produces more machine tools than any other city in the world.

Ohio struggles along in a mere fifth place among coal producers, but even so its coal output exceeds in value that of all the gold manufactured in the United States.

The aviation industry in the state is pushing into the front ranks. During the war, Ohio received 33 cents out of every dollar spent for aviation equipment, according to the Development News, and the Ohio stamp now appears on everything from model airplanes to heavy bombers.

The state also ranks high as a chemical producer. The richest and deepest salt beds in the world lie along the Ohio river between East Liverpool and Marietta.

And to make sure that there will be even greater development in the future, Ohio contains 14 per cent of the nation's industrial laboratories, among them the world's largest endowed research center conducting experiments with fuels, ceramics, metallurgy, and chemistry.

Fabulous Garsson Brothers Parlayed Letterhead Into $78,000,000 Combine Fed By War Contracts

Promoters Land In Center of Senate Probe as Lush Years End.

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
(Special to the News-Journal)
WASHINGTON — The Garsson brothers, now under investigation by the Senate Mead committee, emerged today as just a couple of Brooklyn boys who emigrated to Illinois and grew up to promote a $78,000,000 war-contract business in Illinois.

The story of the rise of the two men—now known in Washington as the "fabulous Garssons"—began in London, which their parents left in 1892 for America. There were five boys.

However, the Senate War Investigating committee, of which Senator Mead (D) of New York is chairman, is interested in only two of them: Henry M. Garsson, age unknown, and Murray (Wolf) Garsson, 56, now residing in Havana, Cuba, for his health.

The committee is interested in the way in which the two Garssons built up a "paper empire" of 16 interlocking companies in Illinois which received $78,000,000 in munitions contracts during the war.

A central figure in the investigation is Rep. Andrew J. May (D) of Kentucky, chairman of the House committee on military affairs, linked by testimony as having aided them in securing contracts from the war department.

WAR PTT BROTHERS IN "BIG TIME"

The two men had an interesting and varied career before they entered the war munitions field but it reached its amazing climax during the war.

It began in 1912 when Henry Garsson was a consulting engineer for the Segal Sale and Lock company which operated a plant in the Erie Basin section of Brooklyn.

According to testimony given the committee by Louis Segal, his employer, Garsson began his fantastic career with the aid of his employer's letterhead. Using that, he led the war department to believe that Garsson was prepared to manufacture munitions in Segal's plant. He obtained a letter of intent and a million-dollar advance on a contract.

Joseph F. Freeman, 19, who describes himself as the Washington representative of the famous war combine, said Garsson proposed to several Illinois concerns that they "get together." It was agreed, he added, and resulted in the formation of the Erie Basin Metals company. From then on, other companies were formed, mostly paper on his constitutional rights and refused to testify.

Garsson explained to a newsman: "We got the war contracts and they got the work under our management."

Murray's "The Brain". Henry's brother, Murray, has been described as the "chief promoter." Safely out of reach of the Mead committee, Murray Garsson has heeded the demand that he played a mystic part in this war-time story of fame and riches.

The Mead committee is anxious to question Murray, but is unable to subpoena him as long as he remains at the Hotel Nacional, Havana, for his health. Henry Garsson was subpoenaed but stood up.

He is a doctor of juridical science, received from St. Lawrence university, according to his account, has a degree from New York university in business administration and mechanical engineering, and

Henry was also employed by the House bondholders' investigating committee as an "analyst."

According to an FBI report submitted to the Mead committee, Murray Garsson had a New York City police record which links him with Owney Madden and Dutch Schultz, unsavory characters of the prohibition era.

Nothing Too Good.
Indicative of the lush life they led during the war years as heads of the intricate munitions combine they formed, was the disclosure by the Mead committee of how the war department disallowed various items carried as necessary expenses by Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., one of the firms under investigation.

Thus, in 1943, the war department rejected a $10,000 expense item listed by Murray Garsson for entertainment in Washington, D. C.

The same year the war department disallowed such items as these, filed by Erie Basin as expenses for gifts and entertainment: $437 for 25 gold pens, $138 for two cigar lighters, $2,812 for gifts of liquor, $5,313 for 100 cases of liquor, and $720 for 12 gold pen and pencil sets.

STEELS LEAD WALL STREET RECOVERY BID

Stocks Extend Recoveries in Spite of Timidity Shown by Buyers.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks, led by steels, extended their recovery in today's market by fractions to around 3 points although buying remained more or less timid.

Accounts again were reinstated in most cases, brokers said, on the idea the list may have been over-sold and was due for a substantial technical comeback.

Prominent on the upturn were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Republic Steel, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Packard & Buick, Tite-Water Co., Standard Oil of Calif., Texas Co., Amoco, Electric Power & Light, Du Pont, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Air Reduction and Union Carbide.

POLK TOWNSHIP KEEPS DISTRICT

New Law Enables Citizens to Hold District Despite No School.

BUCYRUS — Polk township school district in Crawford county no longer boasts a school house, but its citizens are determined to hang onto their district.

When the question of abolishing the district came before County Superintendent of Schools Milton Harman, 98 per cent of the residents of the district protested the action.

Under a recent state law when residents protest, that's the end of the matter. As a result 151 students in the district will continue to attend the Galion schools, an arrangement that is satisfactory with the Galion school officials, and Polk keeps its district.

MOVING TODAY
GALION—Mrs. John Leech and son, Charles, and daughter, Mrs. Isabelle Snider, who have lived at 205 North Liberty street for a number of years, today are moving to their new home in Columbus at 1156 South Cassingham road.

OMAHA, Neb., —(INS)— Nebraska is behind about two full years in its supply of available teachers, according to Dr. William A. Waite, of the University of Omaha.

He said there are between 2,000 and 2,500 teaching jobs to be filled in the state this fall and only some 1,500 or 1,600 students who completed teacher-training this spring in the colleges and high school of Nebraska.

Much of the teacher-shortage, according to Dr. Waite, was caused by the great number of women who resigned their jobs to join their husbands. He added that few instructors who quit school to take better paying war jobs have returned to the profession.

Rice at Weddings Now Out of Style

CHICAGO — (UP) — Three weddings on the same day, all featured by the traditional rice throwing, gave the Rev. Michael A. Campagna, of Immaculate Conception Church, East Chicago, an idea.

He looked at the rice, then he thought of the June weddings coming up and remembered the starving thousands in Europe. The next Sunday he asked his congregation to stop throwing rice.

Destructive Power Is Demonstrated

WHATEVER was to have been learned, or demonstrated, by the above-water and underwater atomic bomb explosions carried through off Bikini atoll, will probably be revealed by study of the effects of the two tests that have been made.

Wednesday's underwater exhibition of effectiveness of the atomic bomb as a weapon of destruction seems to have been more spectacular and awe inspiring than the earlier test, although there was fortunate escape from the earth-shattering force which some prophets of doom predicted.

All in all, it appears that mankind has now advanced, scientifically, to the point of having delved into the forces of Nature to such extent as to be able to destroy everything that has been built up during the centuries of civilization's slow progress.

These same forces, however, might readily be turned to vast betterment of members of the human family in all parts of the world—it is merely a matter of deciding on the uses to which they shall be put—Destructive or CONstructive.

As matters stand, the decision hangs in the balance—with much depending on the United States to determine the outcome.

Ohio Offers Tourist Attractions

WHILE distant places may seem more alluring, vacationing Ohioans should not overlook the fact that their own state has many tourist attractions which they should not miss seeing.

With travel restrictions removed, for the first time in several years, it is interesting to note that a motor trip entirely within the confines of the Buckeye State can be made well worth while.

The Ohio State Archeological and Historical Society reports that this year has brought a large increase in number of visitors at many of the state's historic spots.

In the June just past, for instance, 12,680 people visited Fort St. Clair; 12,594 the Mound Builders' works near Newark; 10,800 stopped at Fort Ancient; 28,130 called at Schoenbrunn and 5,569 spent some time at the Ohio State Museum, as compared with 4,125 in June a year ago.

At the 35 memorials over which this society has supervision, 156,371 visitors were recorded this June, an increase of 250 per cent from the 60,353 during the same month last year.

Expect Much of Electronics

ELECTRONICS is another of the things that the so-called "average person" will prefer to take for granted, rather than attempt to fully understand, as even a "simplified" explanation, such as is given by Gordon Volkenant, leaves an impression that it is the fictional Aladdin's lamp that is being talked about—not something that has actually been developed and already put to use.

Mr. Volkenant, who is co-ordinator of new products research for the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company, spoke at yesterday's joint meeting of the Mansfield Kiwanis and Rotary clubs and reduced electronics to as nearly what is termed "layman's language" as could be hoped for from a man who has given many years to study and experimentation in that field and to whom the whole thing is as simple as the abc's.

Most amazing, perhaps, is revelation of the extent to which the application of the marvelous accuracy of electronic devices entered into the later stages of the war against Germany and Japan, and his forecast of astonishing peacetime products that may be expected.

So get acquainted with that word, "electronics," and be careful not to say, "It can't be done," but don't be particularly disturbed if you can't understand HOW it is done—leave that to the experts.

Tips Drop as Prices Advance

ONE RESULT of rising prices is the cutting down on tips to waitresses. The customers apparently figure that by the time they've paid for a meal, they can't afford to leave another ten or fifteen per cent as a tip.

Girls in big city restaurants are beginning to feel the pinch, because tips have amounted to a considerable portion of their weekly earnings. As the prices on the menu go up, their income is going down.

It never was a very sound idea for restaurant owners to depend on the customers to pay part of their waitresses' salaries, but as long as times were fairly good and the public felt bound by tradition to tip, the system continued. If the public rebels at tipping, restaurant wages will be due to rise. It would put the waitresses on a more self-respecting basis in regard to their earnings.

Russia Again Rejects U. S. Plan For Control of Atomic Energy

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE FULL extent of the damage done by the under-water atomic bomb in Bikini lagoon hasn't yet been determined, but there's plenty to confirm that we have to do with a giant of awful might.

Howard Blakeslee, Associated Press science writer aboard USS Appalachian at the scene, says that this latest bomb was "probably the most powerful man-made force ever loosed—perhaps even stronger than the bomb that razed most of Nagasaki last August."

In any event, we know that atomic energy is the greatest force on which puny man ever has succeeded in putting his halter. It is capable of unlimited destruction or can be made to work wonders.

The method of developing and controlling this new-found might is the world's No. 1 problem of the moment. And yet even as the experts were detonating the under-water bomb at Bikini, over here in New York the highly explosive question of atomic control was being used for a football at the conference of the UN Atomic Energy Commission. One shudders at the thought.

The proposal of the United States for global supervision of atomic energy once more was up for consideration. This is the wholly altruistic offer of Uncle Sam to destroy his store of atomic bombs and share his atomic secrets for peaceful use if the world will set up adequate safeguards to make sure this terrible weapon never again can be used as an instrument of war.

As you will recall, this involves surrender of the veto power by the five major nations on all matters pertaining to atomic development. It provides for the creation of an international atomic development authority with absolute power over atomic raw materials and production.

It calls for the adoption of an international law "with teeth," providing for severe punishment of violators, and endowing the international atomic development authority with the right of investigation in any country.

This proposal was put before the UN Atomic Energy commission on June 14. On June 19 Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate to the UN and representative to the Atomic Energy commission, rejected the United States plan to abolish the veto on atomic matters and presented his own atomic control plan which would put the whole system of control under the security council and the United Nations set-up.

On July 12 the United States presented a further memorandum amplifying and explaining its proposal. Wednesday Gromyko exploded his own atomic bomb by flatly rejecting the American proposals once more.

At first glance it might appear that the Soviet suspects Uncle Sam of hiding trickery under the cloak of beneficence. However, that suspicion would be so utterly absurd that we must look further for an explanation of the Soviet attitude.

After all, Uncle Sam, has the whole bag of atomic tricks in his hands already and so why—if he were up to mischief—would he be offering to give away the greatest power man ever has possessed?

The Moscow plan, proposing to keep the whole control within the United Nations machinery, clings tenaciously to that veto power. Observers note that under this arrangement the UN control could not institute an investigation within the borders of any nation possessing the veto power.

In short, Russia apparently isn't willing to lessen her sovereignty to the extent of granting the atomic control agency the blanket right of investigation within the Soviet union. She demands the privilege of vetoing investigation.

So the question of atomic control is about back where it started.

Farmer's Diary: "Magic-Working Moth."

WE MAY read the enchanted tales of Arabian Nights, the magic of the Hindu, the foresight of the soothsayer or the skill of the modern magician, yet the intimate touch of a little fly-like wasp has the strange power to outdo them all.

When a lad, near Christmas-time, I used to dream of a playhouse with walls of candy and partitions of chocolate. Here I was imprisoned until I could eat my way out and escape safely home.

The wasp, aforementioned, fulfills my childish dreams.

Just after the leaves of a scarlet oak had almost reached their growth, I passed a small tree and paused to admire it. On the tip of a branch, I noticed a small wasp alight and cling. It seemed to be there for business, but I saw no puncture of the leaf tissue where an egg might be deposited.

About a week later, passing by, I noticed that the substance of the tip was gone, and the central rib held a green ball the size of a small round plum. The surface was glazed and shone with green reflection in the light.

It seemed no intruder bothers him much... the acrid taste serves to protect him. However, as a source of tannic acid, galls are used commercially sometimes.

When the larva reaches full growth, it changes to the pupa stage, and eventually comes out a full grown fly, the image of its parent. I have seen galls on willows, on cottonwoods, on goldenrod and white oak—all shapes, all sizes, and of various colors.

As an example of the interdependence of plants and insects the gall apple is worth considering. The strange power to demand and receive a home with board and lodging furnished is rarely found among humankind, outside the political field. What I wonder is where does the insect get so much gall to begin with?

WASHINGTON—Most distressing political development in the nation is the weakening of public confidence in our democratic legislative system. Wire-pulling for war profiteers by Congressman May of Kentucky, congressional dawdling over OPA, the influence of cash campaign contributors over congressional voting, all have weakened confidence in congress at a time when we can't afford lack of confidence.

This writer happens to be one who believes congress can be, usually, a bulwark of our democracy. Furthermore, most of its members are honest, conscientious, hard working. They are a true cross-section of the American people—which is the essence of democracy.

A small minority, however, can damage the reputation of the rest. Long ago, congress should have adopted rules of conduct to protect its own reputation. But, since it covers up rather than purges willard members, this column will call the roll of congressmen who vote for the pocketbook interest rather than the public interest. Here is the first rollcall:

Rep. Frank B. Keefe, Wisconsin Republican—led fight to defeat legislation for national cemeteries to bury war dead. Instead, he advocated and voted to plan to bury war dead in private cemeteries in USA—which means large profits for private cemeteries. Most people don't know it, but Congressman Keefe is president of Lakeview Memorial Park, Oshkosh, Wis., operators of a private cemetery. Keefe, therefore, voted for his pocketbook interest, not the public interest.

Rep. Dean Gillespie, Denver, Col., Republican—battled to the end against OPA. He happens to be vice president of Bluehill Foods, Inc., which, on March 22, paid a fine of $1,007.11 to OPA for violating price ceilings on marmalade. His company is now being sued for $13,901.31 treble damages for violating price ceilings on preserves. Congressman Gillespie, therefore, not only let his food company violate price ceilings, but voted for his pocketbook interest to abolish OPA.

Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat—made speeches against OPA margins when OPA tried to prevent cotton speculation. While making these speeches, Thomas and his family were speculating on cotton.

Senator Hugh Butler, Nebraska Republican—opposed famine relief shipments of grain to Europe; also voted to remove price ceilings on meat and grain. Butler is a big grain and flour dealer, also raises cattle. He worked for the pocketbook interest, not the public interest.

Senator Edward Robertson, Wyoming Republican—voted to remove price controls on meat. The senator is a big cattle and sheep rancher. His vote was for the pocketbook interest.

Senator Wherry, Nebraska Republican—introduced an amendment to the OPA Bill whereby automobile dealers would get a higher profit on the sale of cars. Wherry long has been an auto dealer. His vote was for the pocketbook.

Another rollcall of pocketbook-interest congressmen will follow shortly.

Note—This column has long proposed that congressmen be required to register their stock and commodity transactions and their business interests, so the public may judge the influences behind them.

Silly Titles and Secret Oaths of KKK.

ATLANTA—Ours is said to be the land of the free and the home of the brave. And yet—there is something down here called the Ku Klux Klan. It is rearing its head again. The victory of Gene Talmadge in Georgia feeds the Klan spirit. It means, supposedly, that grown-up men, supposedly civilized, can do under the impulse of this evil spirit, is shown no better than by quoting from the suit filed by the state of Georgia to revoke the Klan's charter.

Read the indictment, the child-like titles, and see where it all leads:

"That the government of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is vested in the imperial wizard, called the emperor... assisted by 15 grand dragons who are the imperial officers. The invisible empire... is subdivided into realms. The government of the realms is vested in a grand dragon who is assisted by nine hydras who are the grand officers of a realm."

"That a realm of the invisible empire... is subdivided into provinces. The government of which is vested in a great titan who is assisted by 12 furies who are the grand officers of a province."

"That a province of a realm... is subdivided into Klans, the government of which is vested in an exalted cyclops who is assisted by 12 terrorists who constitute the elective offices of a Klan, the smallest unit, made up of a group of white, gentle, protestant men of kindred purpose who are bound together by an oath and are determined to enhance and protect each other's interest and welfare."

"That the various posts... appointed by and through the exalted cyclops... special committees, which are provided for in writing in any of the written by-laws. Such members as are appointed to said committee... are kept secret from the general membership. The members of said committee... are sworn to secrecy and are instructed to never identify themselves with said order, if any one of them or all of them are apprehended while in the commission of an unlawful act."

"That this committee was known and is known as the 'secret committee' by the members of the various posts. That this committee is self-styled by some of its members 'the wrecking crew.'"

"That one W. W. Scarborough was exalted cyclops of the East Point post of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan during 1937, 1938, 1939, and 1940, and, as such he appointed a secret committee. One Floyd I. Lee was appointed chairman of the secret committee."

(This was the time when Hitler was rising to power and plunging the world into war in Europe.)

"That the duties of this committee were to 'flog' persons who in the opinion of the Klan members needed correcting."

"That the actions of the 'secret committee' in flogging persons grew out of reports which were written to the Ku Klux Klan, Box 55, East Point, Ga., or grew out of reports made verbally to the exalted cyclops of the secretary by the members."

"That as a consequence of the acts of the secret committee of both the East Point and the Oakland City post, 23 identified persons were severely beaten and flogged."

"That on March 7, 1940, Ike Gaston's dead body was found brutally beaten in a stubble field off Redwine road, two miles from the meeting place of the East Point post of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

"It is alleged upon information and belief that the fatal flogging of said Ike Gaston resulted from the joint operations of the 'secret committee' of the East Point and Oakland City posts of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

Ike Gaston's dead body in a stubble field. That's where it all ended—the silly titles, the secret oaths of the "White, Gentle, Protestant men of kindred purpose."

Young men from East Point and Oakland City, suburbs of Atlanta, went all the way across the seas to fight Hitler, sons perhaps of the same guilty of the same sort of crimes Hitler perpetrated, here in the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Georgia owes it to the nation to stamp out this evil thing.

Selfish Interests Promote Tidelands Bill.

WASHINGTON—White House strategy on the Tidelands Oil Bill has been fixed ever since it was apparent that the powerful oil lobby would push it through the senate as well as the house. There was never any doubt of the presidential veto.

The president, of course, will be on the soundest grounds in sending the measure back to congress without his signature. In spite of the talk of previous supreme court decisions on the issue, it was highly irregular for congress to act while the question was pending before the high court.

The determination of the oil lobby to jam the Tidelands Bill through to passage, in spite of all obstacles and all embarrassments, is a measure of the richness of the prize.

It is the last great reserve of oil within the continental United States, and therefore careful supervision of its use under the federal government is vital to the security of this nation.

Some of the president's more hostile critics on Capitol Hill have intimated that he would sign the bill out of loyalty to Edwin W. Pauley. Quite apart from all other considerations, this would be a political blunder of the first order. A glance at the vote in the senate indicates that Pauley was, in a sense, merely a convenient whipping boy. He wanted the Tidelands oil under control of the states, and he set out to achieve that objective by any and every means. Suddenly, the searchlight of publicity fell squarely on him and his methods. But what he was doing, a dozen or a hundred others were also doing. The success of this all-pervasive lobby is measured in the senate vote of 44 to 34 in favor of passage of the bill.

In view of the house vote of 108 to 11 for transfer of the Tidelands oil, the president will probably have to rely on the senate to sustain his veto. With the help of votes from such Republicans as Senators Tobey, LaFollette, Hart and Morse, the president will be able to repulse the oil lobby's maneuver.

It almost seems sometimes as though, in their blindness, certain powerful forces were determined to pull America down. The same kind of lobby was responsible for the "Buy American" clause in the measure just signed by the president providing for creation of strategic stockpiles.

Our great natural wealth was dwindling rapidly long before World War II. The war that ended a year ago cut it to the very bone.

Our supplies of minerals, oil and timber are at a level which means the most careful national planning if we are to be secure within our continental borders.

The creation of strategic stockpiles is an essential part of that planning. Yet congress tacks on an amendment that all but destroys the value of stockpiling. The amendment provides that only items produced or manufactured from materials originating in this country can be bought for "public use."

Stockpiles above ground should be put together from copper, manganese and so on brought in from outside the country. This would tend to conserve our dwindling resources still beneath the ground. If they are still in the earth, they cannot be dissipated or destroyed.

SPENT 51 YEARS IN DEVELOPING LUTHER LEAGUE

Uncle Charley Fuhr, Near 70, to Attend Golden Jubilee.

PITTSBURGH—(UP)—Uncle Charley Fuhr is, as he says, "close to 70," but his long association with young people has instilled in him lots of their youth and vigor. And, when the Luther League of America celebrates its golden jubilee in Pittsburgh, Charles W. Fuhr will be celebrating his 51st year devoted to its development and expansion.

The league was organized on a national scale in 1895, but couldn't celebrate its first half century last year because of travel restrictions.

Uncle Charley—as he is known to thousands of leaguers—will be the only charter member still active in the organization to attend the jubilee celebrations.

Organized 50 Leagues.
From the time the Luther league was chartered, Uncle Charley has spent his evenings and days-off in missionary work among young people. He has aided in organizing 50 local leagues, including the Junior Luther league of Grace Lutheran church in Pittsburgh. It has been active since 1897 in giving religious instruction to children from eight to 14 years old.

Fuhr said:
"Back in '95 I saw the need to make church life more important in the lives of young people. So I just naturally became interested and that interest has grown each year."

"The need for the Luther league, and similar organizations, grows each year. There are so many influences—not all necessarily bad—but influences that detract young people from church life."

Uncle Charley has attended most of the national conventions during his vacations from a Pittsburgh bank, where he is a bookkeeper. He has served as national treasurer and advisor.

See 'Seven Caves' As Atomic Hideout
CHILLICOTHE—(UP)—Should this country become involved in an all-out atomic war, Ohio's famous "Seven Caves" near Chillicothe would play an important role in saving lives and industry.

J. S. Petrie, Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Speleological society, said here recently that underground cavities, such as the "seven caves," will be the country's main hope in case of an all-out atomic war.

Museum to Study Rare Bassaricyon

CHICAGO—(UP)—A stuffed bassaricyon, one of the rarest of mammals, is being shipped to the Chicago Museum of Natural History, Colin C. Sanborn, curator, has announced.

The animal resembles both the raccoon and the giant panda, Sanborn said, and the museum seeks to establish its rightful place in relationship to mammals.

The bassaricyon is found only in the jungles of South America.

The banana plant, resembling a tree, actually is an herb with tightly rolled leaves serving as stems.

Card Party Winners Should Keep Prizes Says Emily Post

By EMILY POST
Among certain American customs that are quaint, very few are annoying. Most prominent among these few (and, in my opinion, the least reasonable) is the occasionally encountered "guest prize."

A reader tells me: "We have moved to a small town where it seems to be the general custom at parties to turn the bridge prizes over to the guest of honor. Every time I go to such a party I am nervous for fear I might win the prize for cards and not know what to do. As a general rule, people open the package and then give it to the guest of honor. I cannot feel that this is correct, but don't know whether it would be better to follow suit or to follow my feelings."

As a newcomer, you can, of course, do nothing about the custom of the community. But really, I do think that the time has come when older residents should do something about banishing this altogether wrong guest prize. It is certainly the height of unfairness to invite friends to play for a prize which the winner does not win! Why anyone should be asked to play for it is something I cannot understand!

Season to Taste.
Dear Mrs. Post: Should ketchup or Worcestershire sauce be put on the plate and each bite be dipped into it, or should it be poured directly on the food?

Answer: Do which ever you prefer. There is no rule other than your own taste.

Godfather May Hold Baby.
Dear Mrs. Post: Does it ever happen that a godfather holds the baby instead of the godmother?

Answer: Not usual but entirely possible. (As a matter of fact, this happened at my own little grandchild's christening the other day.)

Leave Paper Coverings!
Dear Mrs. Post: When putting chocolate candy in a dish should the frilled paper cups be removed first?

Answer: Oh, please, no!—not unless you are replacing with others that you think prettier!

Dear Mrs. Post: May graduation announcements be sent to a list of relatives and friends even though my son will not be present at the actual commencement. However, he has earned (and will receive) his diploma.

Answer: So long as he is receiving his diploma, there could hardly be an impropriety in announcing this fact.

Sophisticate

Witness the compelling serenity of Eve Arden. Long, statuesque lines on black crepe center eye interest in back where a flounce of white with black polka dots flashes—the newest thing in fashion and coquetry. Ideal for the cocktail hour, dinner or the outdoor concert, it has a high, round neck that dictates seads of necklets, bracelet-length sleeves that call for gloves, a cinched waist and graceful skirt.

Miss Arden carries through on the theme of black and white with a white flowered, off-the-face bonnet, a white necklet, softly shirred, long white gloves to match and black patent sling pumps. If you're one who must introduce change in your costumes, choose accessories in pink, blue or yellow. They add fragile and happy contrast to deep black.

Simple tricks for the girl with a whim to turn this into another costume: cover front of dress from the waist with an apron-spirit in the same black-and-white polka dot pattern as the flounce, wear a silver choker or clips at the neckline and top it off with a wide-brimmed black straw hat.

During the evening the members played games. Aug. 29 the group will meet with Mrs. Ward Livingston.

James Wappner and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rebel were in charge of arrangements for the meeting. The committee for the meeting on Aug. 29 will be Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Gilbert and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leech.

Lodge Committee Meets Last Night

Members of the social service committee of the Women of the Moose, met at the home of Mrs. Peter Harold, Lily street, last night. Mrs. Fred Lewis, senior regent, was present as a guest.

Mrs. Samuel Gentile, Mrs. Lloyd Hughes, and Mrs. Cloyd Wycoff won the prizes during the evening.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Elma Whiteleather, Hammond avenue, Aug. 27, with Mrs. Clyde Butler as associate hostess.

New York Notes

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Jettings In Pencil—Inside story on Howard Hughes: The flier is out of danger and will fly again—in fact, he expects to be able to pilot a ship by the time the Hercules, the giant eight-motored seaplane, is ready to be taken up. His quote to intimates at the hospital: "If I don't fly it, nobody else will." Once it has been floated, the Hercules will be taxed around in the water for several months. . . . Contrary to reports, Lana Turner never visited the hospital to attempt to see Hughes; the small blonde who was mistaken for Lana was Janet Thomas, who dates Johnny Meyers, the flier's Man Friday. The only girls who actually called at the hospital were Linda Darnell and Jane Russell. . . . Lana telephoned, but didn't try to see Howard because she knew she wouldn't be allowed in his room. . . .

Monte Proser sacked three of his most beautiful Copacabana chorines after they attended a movie star's party at the Sherry-Netherland. . . . Jackie Miles, the comedian, is studying hypnotism and plans to introduce it into his night club act. (Well, that's one way of making 'em laugh!) . . . Treasury department officials are seriously considering changing the color of the currency as a step toward smothering out black market money. . . . Vivien Leigh confides to friends that she never was approached about playing "Amber." She read about it in the papers. . . .

One of Broadway's better comics is flirting with a roll of nickels in his teeth. He's very forgetful about paying off, and the boys at a gambling house near Cincinnati want to see him. . . . One of the most popular bandleaders in Miami Beach — the handsome, swoony type, not a comedy character—is named Crusty Drybread. . . . Milliners were jittery about the swept-to-one-side hairdo fad for fear it would precipitate another no-hat era — so they've quickly invented all-to-one-side hats. But what makes the beauticians think they've got something new there? Didn't Norma Shearer wear her hair that way in "A Free Soul" umpty-ump years ago?

Dave Rose will be singularly honored by Leopold Stokowski. When the maestro does a concert with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra later this summer he will confect several Rose compositions, including "Holiday For Strings" arranged for full orchestra. . . . A big syndicate will try to talk Irving Berlin into operating his own night club, with Berlin appearing in the show, producing it and writing new music (as well as using some of his old tunes) for the production numbers. . . . Next sensational war era expose will be an investigation of brass hats who kept favored GIs from going overseas during the hottest part of the fighting.

Half the cuties in Hollywood are luv'd at Paulette Goddard—sheer envy, nothing else. While they run into each other wearing the same $400 Adrians and Greens, Paulette puts them in the shade with her exclusive models. She came back from Europe with a complete collection of Paris originals. . . . One cabbie who has a sense of humor—despite the fact that he drives a cab in which you get shaken up like the egg in a malted milk and the doors are held on by ropes—displays a sign reading: "You'll be out in a minute, but I ride around in the junk-heap all day."

Monte's on-the-Park is conducting a city-wide search for a doorman in the tradition of those handsome cabbies across the street—someone old, elegant and exceedingly polite. They got the idea because most of the trade has taken to arriving and departing via hansom cabs. . . . Ina Ray Hutton, whose band will play the Texas Oil M'n's dance in Dallas late this summer, was instructed to purchase a new, daring dress for the engagement—at the expense of the promoters. She had a brown and spun gold affair designed in Hollywood; it cost the old sponsors a mere $2,800! . . . Midtown hotel employees are tipping off their favorite guests to try to switch to lower floors because a strike is imminent.

Take Care Of Natural Curls Daily

MME. QUI VIVE

The finger wave is the child of the permanent. The first hard-boiled treatments left the feminine head looking like a floor mop. The frizz had to be under control. So the finger wave came into action, formed pleasing undulations. It has been flourishing ever since.

It is not a new idea. In the time of Marie Antoinette it was used for waving those beautiful white-wigs that were born at the French court. For many years it has been the means of putting an attractive crimp in demountable hair. A hair stylist didn't have to be very bright to discover that this method could be employed on the cash customers that trailed into the beauty shop.

The finger wave will strengthen a half-hearted natural wave. Curly girls who aren't as curly as they would like to be should indulge in these treatments. In time, they will produce a charming pattern. The natural wave often suffers from neglect. The slightest sign of soap deposits left on the silken shafts will discourage it, make tresses go straight and limp. Certain hair dyes will destroy it. With such a blessing, surely one should not begrudge the time necessary to give it vitalizing attentions.

Dust and soap deposits weaken the natural curl because they prevent the absorption of moisture from the air. Moisture tightens the shafts, sends them into spiral. If a girl finds herself lamenting a lost wave, she should change her shampoo medium. Many a lovely head of hair, subjected to home shampooing, is never really free of soap scum. There should be three soapings, as many rinsings. A bath spray and a strong current of water should be employed.

When the shampoo is finished, turn on the hot water faucet in the bathtub; give the glorious crown a steaming. It loves moisture, responds to it quickly.

Sometimes the vinegar rinse will weaken the natural wave. There is no reason for having it if the shampoo is thorough.

While the hair is wet, sweep it straight back from forehead and the sides of the head, using the fine teeth of the comb for this purpose. Then give it a push forward. The strands will fall properly, forming a pleasing design.

If the hair isn't curly enough to suit—if Mama Nature was not lavish—one can have a permanent. But the operator must be expert, else the wave will be too strong and the result will be kinky, almost unmanageable.

Household Hints

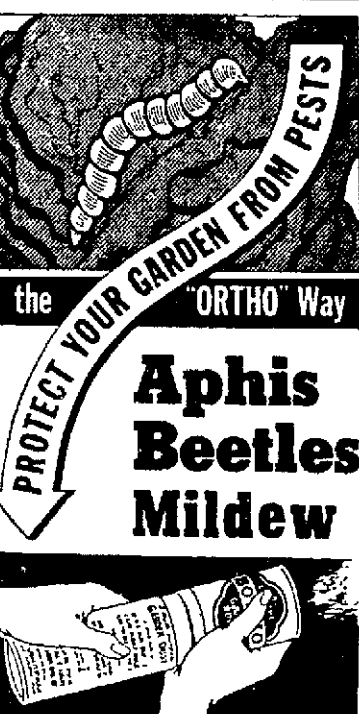

Smithfield hams are made from peanut-fed hogs.

If a new clothes line is boiled for a few minutes in soapy water before being used, it will become softer and more durable.

To remove soiled rings from bathroom porcelain, use a few drops of a kerosene in a solution of soapy water.

Corn meal breads, such as corn dodgers, hoe cake and crackling bread, can help save wheat for shipment to destitute Europeans.

Don't waste the good pot liquor drained from spinach. Use it in soup or healthful, chilled vegetable cocktail.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, July 27.

While there is a lively urge to attack important problems or to strenuously and aggressively attack temporarily static conditions, yet it would be well to make it a day of relaxation and diversion with heart and home interests and functions claiming attention, in order that menaced affairs may have time to rearrange basic elements.

In all, there is danger from extravagance and excess. Unwise indulgences may react on a promising trend of worthwhile affairs. Don't show off or brag.

Those whose birthday it is may be able to take time off for relaxation and diversion, with attention and enjoyments in heart and home affiliations, ultimately to have a profitable and agreeable reaction on business, credit or position.

A tendency to overdo, exaggerate, show off, or to squander the energies and substance in hazardous channels, should be curbed, lest the penalties be far-reaching.

A child born on this day may have able energies and abilities, with practical ambitions. But a spirit of extravagance and show may defeat it. Social or heart affairs, duly evaluated, might offset dangerous proclivities.

New Methods Needed For Child Adoption

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

Some of the practices concerning adoption of children throughout the United States are truly disgraceful. Looking forward to some measures for correction, the social agencies of New York City, for example, are attempting to get some state legislation. Yet, the best laws won't be easy to enforce, since the violator of sound practice on placing a child available for adoption may be a person of kindest intentions, such as a doctor, relative or friends.

There are far more homes eager to adopt a child than can possibly be supplied. I get many letters asking me where to find a baby for adoption and all I can answer is, "Apply at an authorized social agency."

On May 17, the New York Times commented editorially: "There is something reassuring about human nature in this ardent desire to have a child in the home. But the subject has its tawdry aspects. One is the 'black market' in babies, of which almost everyone has heard by now. Babies are bought and sold by brokers, the price running to $1,000, $2,000 and even more."

Several months ago I reported in this column what Maud Morlock of the U. S. Children's bureau had just told of the flourishing baby market, of many unwed mothers signing away the rights to their babies even before they were born. Miss Morlock estimated that one in every twelve births in this country was illegitimate, compared with one in every twenty-five in 1942, the rise being a product of wartime conditions. She estimated that less than half of all illegitimate infants adopted were placed by professional children's agencies.

To quote further from "The Times," "This is a shocking condition, for it means that even in cases where adoption becomes legal there was an exchange of a child, with or without the passing of money, with no preliminary investigation of child or prospective home."

"The attempted secrecy that surrounds the arrival of an illegitimate child, the mother's frequent lack of money and other factors involved make this an extremely difficult subject to legislate on successfully."

The bill which will probably appear before the next New York state legislature would "forbid any person, including mother or lawful guardian, from accepting money for placing a child in a foster home or helping to do so. Repeated violations would mean prison for such a broker. Any person receiving a child in contemplation of adoption would have to make a full report to the state within 14 days, when an enquiry would begin. Legal adoption would have to wait for six months."

"We are not likely to solve this problem with legislation until people generally are better informed on reasons why a full-scale, professional scrutiny of both child and prospective home is essential before a wise adoption can be completed. Nor will we solve it until something like a uniform law for all states is established."

Adoptive parents may be tempted home or helping to do so. Repeated violations would mean prison for such a broker. Any person receiving a child in contemplation of adoption would have to make a full report to the state within 14 days, when an enquiry would begin. Legal adoption would have to wait for six months."

ed to try to make the child and their friends believe he is of their own flesh and blood, to be over-indulgent of him, and to suppose when his behavior falls short of what they expect, it is a matter of his inheritance.

Wise adoptive parents candidly tell the child he is adopted as soon as he can understand other things they tell him. They aim to bring him up exactly as if he had been of their own flesh and blood. They take responsibility themselves for his conduct, moral guidance and citizenship.

Your Figure, Madame

—By Ida Jean Kain

Women love to talk about dieting. Particularly, while partaking of good food. Right? At lunch you talk about dieting at dinner, and so help yourself to more potato salad. At dinner, while eating the peach pie, you firmly decide to diet at breakfast.

But, this being July, and your last chance to get slim this summer, tomorrow you diet. No breakfast. Very little lunch. Along about dinner time you'll begin to wonder if this diet isn't going to harm your health. But you'll hold out, the first day anyway. By the second day our husband will put his foot down and insist you cut out this nonsense and eat a good meal. Saved! And by the time you face the diet the third day you come to the conclusion that your figure really isn't so bad after all. And so goes another summer.

In the first place, you should eat to reduce, not diet. Food, three times a day, is the only thing that will help you hold out. And when you build the low calorie menus around the nutrition essentials you know the diet can't harm your health.

It's easier to deal with hunger pangs when you know that actually they do not mean you are in danger of starving, but merely a sign that your stomach is empty, which may be a novel experience. Also, it helps strengthen will power to know that you won't keep on being hungry. That muscular organ, the stomach, shrinks and less food is more filling. Cut out the second helpings and the snacks and you'll gradually break the habit of overeating.

But have good food. Eat a good breakfast, perhaps better than usual. Fruit, an egg (not fried), a slice of toast and coffee. Of course, not too much butter and cream, but a good breakfast all the same.

It's easy to have a low calorie lunch when you've eaten a fair breakfast. Fix a delicious salad plate, sliced tomato, cucumber, lettuce and water cress, sliced hard cooked egg or slice of cheese. Add salt to the salad, and vinegar. Have two thin slices of rye bread, lightly buttered. And perhaps hot tea with lemon and sugar. One hot food with a meal is a good plan. For dessert, a slice of cantaloupe.

But don't drink a lot of ice water with the meal. Keep meal-time liquids to six ounces. And eat slowly.

At dinner, have protein of some kind, and two or three hot vegetables, a glass of milk or buttermilk and fruit. That meal is filling, not fattening and good nutrition.

That's the way to eat to reduce. Just talking about it burns only 90 to 100 calories per hour. So it's easy to see you can't talk off the pounds.

Veterans' Families Convert Huts Into Cheerful Homes

NEW YORK—(AP)—The chance to start life in a quonset hut was a real break for 17-day-old Gloria Lynn Ruby.

Gloria Lynn is the youngest settler in the recently-opened Jamaica bay houses where 2,000 war veterans and their families are moving into long rows of quonsets and "prefabs" just as fast as New York City can assemble them on the site of an undeveloped Brooklyn park.

"My husband told me that our application for a house had been accepted on the very day the baby was born," said 25-year-old Mrs. David Ruby as she busily prepared Gloria Lynn's afternoon bottle.

"So instead of returning to my parents' crowded flat, the baby and I came here directly from the hospital. It was like the answer to a prayer."

Outside, the Rubys' ex-GI home looked exactly like hundreds of others—green-painted corrugated-iron "caterpillars" with small dormer windows. Inside, however, the combination kitchen-parlor was homelike, individual and surprisingly spacious. On one side stood an electric refrigerator, sink and stove; on the other side a sofa, chairs and bookcase. An all purpose table marked the dividing line.

With two small bedrooms and a bath, this unit costs the Rubys $31 a month. In winter it is heated by a kerosene stove.

Like most men in the community, David Ruby—28-year-old ETO veteran—commutes to his work in a Manhattan printing establishment. It takes him 45 minutes by bus and subway.

"Living in a quonset offers no special problems that you wouldn't have in any small apartment," said Mrs. Ruby. "The ceiling is rounded, and when it rains you hear every drop on the metal roof, but a lot of people prefer them to the prefabs."

Mrs. Enid Grennan, who maintains a "model" furnished hut on the project to help new housewives see the possibilities, confirmed this statement.

"Most of the couples here are in their twenties," she said. "All have children, and many have never lived in a home of their own before. It is surprising the ways they find to make their quarters attractive and efficient. The biggest problem is the family with a lot of heavy furniture. They are worse off than those with nothing at all."

The atmosphere of the veterans' settlement, rushed into shape to meet the metropolitan housing shortage, like that of a pioneer boomtown. Dust rises from broad unpaved streets; there are few sidewalks—yet. Young people lend a hand to newly-arriving neighbors, eagerly pointing out where stores and playgrounds can be found.

The veterans and their wives hail from all parts of the country; the quonsets, themselves, were brought down from Rhode Island in LST craft. Like the less military appearing prefabricated houses, they all were used during the war.

Every day new faces and new houses are added. "When you've been here a week," said Mrs. Ruby, "you're an old settler. It's like pioneering—with a jeep instead of a covered wagon."

DEMOCRACY STALWART.
CENTERVILLE, Mass.—(AP)—Theodore V. Wes, one of the oldest residents of Cape Cod, takes his political responsibilities seriously. In the last Barnstable county election, the 94-year-old New Englander walked five miles to cast his vote.
